

Surgery at 16?

The fresh-faced 13-year-old stepped out in Hollywood in 2012.

In Touch claims a nose job gave Kylie (on Jan. 29) "a narrower bridge and tip."

Kylie's pouty Feb. 7 Instagram snap sparked the surgery talk.

KIM KARDASHIAN

"I'm so not the person against plastic surgery, but if you're asking me, I'm telling you I've done Botox on my show," said Kim Kardashian in 2011 in an effort to draw the line on endless plastic-surgery talk, including speculation about butt implants and lip injections. Yet Zacharia believes the first-time mum of North has gone further than Botox to enhance her beauty.

"She absolutely looks like she's had a rhinoplasty performed—the tip appears narrower, more refined and tilted upwards," he says. And while the 33-year-old reality star's lips have always been voluptuous, "they do appear to have been plumped," adds Zacharia. He also suggests, "She may even have had fillers to augment the cheeks and midface region."

Zacharia points out "a mild dorsal hump" on Kim's nose in 2008.

Kim showed off seemingly more streamlined features on March 2.

KYLIE JENNER

Her older sisters are the frequent subjects of plastic-surgery speculation, and now Kylie Jenner is facing rumours. US magazine In Touch reports the 16-year-old reality star's "face has changed" as a result of suspected lip fillers, "Botox injections in the forehead," plus "it appears that she had a rhinoplasty," a plastic surgeon is quoted as suggesting. While a Kardashian insider has slammed the report, telling celebrity website Gossip Cop, "This is a blatant lie and not true," Sydney ear, nose, throat and facial plastic surgeon Dr Michael Zacharia, who has not treated any of these stars, says, "There's no doubt that major changes have occurred." But he remains undecided on whether it's due to plastic or cosmetic enhancement, or makeup trickery. Zacharia observes Kylie's "nose appears thinner, her lips more voluptuous and there's arching of the brow," and adds if not a result of makeup, it's likely "she has had Botox to lift the brow and fillers to the lips." Adds Zacharia, "A rhinoplasty in a 16-year-old is not unheard of with parental guidance and consent. However, fillers to the lips and Botox are much less likely, though not impossible at that age."

"I've tried Botox on my reality show—I'm the first one to talk about anything I do," says Kim (in 2008).

"Rumours don't bother me anymore," says Kim (on Dec. 11).

Zacharia spots a "definite change to the width of the nose" in Khloé (in 2006).

Makeup or more? Sleek and smouldering in 2013.

"I've never resorted to surgery," Khloé (in a Jan. 29 snap) has said. "I'm not against it— one day I probably will but it would be on my terms."

KHLOE KARDASHIAN

"When I was around 9 I overheard my mom telling her friend I needed a nose job," the star, 29, told UK Cosmopolitan magazine. "I was shocked; I hadn't even thought about it ... I've grown into my face but I've had makeup artists tell me, 'You should get a nose job. I'm so happy that I never have." Still, recent social-media snaps have some fans wondering if she's opted for a tweak or two. "It definitely appears that she's had a rhinoplasty," suggests Zacharia. "Her lips look as if they might have been injected with fillers."

Relatively rugged in 2011.

BRUCE JENNER

The former Olympian, 64, has been open about undergoing plastic surgery in the past, beginning with a partial facelift and nose job in the mid-1980s, a "botched" procedure that took a toll on the athlete's self-esteem. Most recently he has undergone a tracheal shave, flattening his Adam's apple.

Bruce (on Feb. 10) "thinks he looks great," says a source. "He doesn't listen to the criticism."

Glam in 2008.

KRIS JENNER

As recounted in her 2011 memoir, the mum of six has had two breast enhancements and is a fan of Botox. Her 2011 facelift before daughter Kim's wedding to Kris Humphries was filmed for reality TV. "I needed a little freshening up for the wedding," she said. "Just doing what a girl's gotta do!"

Kris's surgeon Dr. Garth Fisher called the results of his work "absolutely stunning."
